

Moving Ahead

Even as fund-raising for Legacies: A Vision of Hope continues, components of the campaign are becoming reality. Highlights of the fall include the debut of new and improved dance, fitness and weight facilities in the Dow Center, and continuing progress on the new science center.

At left, students, future users of the new science center, take time to sign the final beam, their words destined to become part of the new building for all time.

The new fitness and weight rooms in the Dow Center are a student dream realized. Former Student Congress president Louis Canfield '01 visits the fitness room earlier this fall with Dr. Richard Frost, vice president for student life. "We wanted it to be spacious, and to have an adequate variety of equipment, and I think it meets both of those criteria," Canfield said.

The structural steelwork of the new science center is completed with an orange-and-blue beam on Friday, Sept. 13.

The science center continues to progress rapidly, with roof plating and walls replacing open girders.

The former weight room in the Dow Center is now a new dance studio.
